The University
HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION

THE LANDS OF THE ABOVE-NAMED ASSOCIATION are situated in San Francisco and are eligibly and most desirably located, adjoining the grounds purchased by the Presbyterian University Society, on which College buildings are to be at once erected. The site is less than thirty minutes ride from Montgomery street, lying just west or back of the lands of the South San Francisco Homestead and Railroad Association and the Bay View Park, almost within a stone's throw of ST. MARY'S COLLEGE.

The tract will require little or no grading, there being scarcely a single lot on which it would not be safe to build without any change of grade. It commands a

Beautiful View of the Bay,

And its opposite shore, and has a soil of extreme richness. No great amount of the natural attractions of the spot that very many of the wealthy citizens of San Francisco have already purchased whole blocks in the same tract, and design building residences thereon.

The Rev. E. Thomas, D. D.,

Is President of the Association; Lester L. Robinson, formerly Vice President of the Sacramento Railroad Company, is the Treasurer, and Thomas D. Lewis, formerly of Portland, Secretary.

Four lots, 25x120 feet each, constitute a share, costing $215—paid in monthly installments of $10 each, after the first payment of $20 has been made.

Maps and books giving full information of the workings of the Association can be obtained at the store of J. L. PARRISH & CO.

It is an easy and a cheap way for young men to procure property which will in a few years make them independent.

Any person having a claim against me, and wishing a ticket, can get an order for one by calling on me on board the boat. The person drawing the gold watch can have $100 in gold coin, if preferred

C. P. PERRY, Broker, R. J. LADD, ex-Sheriff, AL ZEIBELL, U. S. Marshal, and C. S. SILVER, Merchant, of Portland, are the Committee and Judges to direct the Drawing of Prizes. The Prizes will be drawn before the 1st of August, if all the tickets are taken before that time

Z The above liberal offer is made to the traveling public to enable the subscriber to pay his debts, and not with any reference to speculation, as all the property is valued at much less than its cost, (the Steamer alone having cost $11,000), and the price for carrying passengers to Astoria being much less than the usual fare.

PIONEER WASHER.
JAMES BRUSIE,
AGENT FOR OREGON AND WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

THIS CELEBRATED WASHING MACHINE IS now for the first time introduced to the Oregon public. It is unrivalled for its simplicity, durability and the rapidity and ease of its action. Washing the dirtiest clothes perfectly clean in from five to ten minutes, with but slight labor, and lasting, with proper care, for ten years. The wear and tear of clothing in washing by this machine is vastly less than by any other known process of washing. It is easily worked by one person

This Machine captured the Special Premium at the California State Fair, and all that have used it pronounce it an invaluable adjunct to old housekeepers and families and washing men and washing women.

It has been extensively introduced throughout the State of California, and receives the universal commendation of all who have used it.

The undersigned is now in the city of Portland, where he can be seen at Mr. O. Kilbourn's Store, corner of Front and Yamhill Sts., East side, Portland, and is prepared to furnish the Machine to purchasers, and also to sell and dispose of County Rights for the sale of the same.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO JUNE 1.

Grand Lodge of Good Templars.

CHICAGO, June 1.—The National Grand Lodge of Good Templars has been in session at Detroit, Mich. It adjourned to meet at Poughkeepsie, next year. A resolution was adopted recommending the formation of county leagues pledged to vote for none but temperance men. The attendance was quite large.

Mosquitoes in the city, with the Japanese troup. They draw immense crowds.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Trade continues dull in all departments, with a general run of prices in favor of buyers. Domestic cotton goods are dull and depressed.

Washington News

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Formal charges have been made against Isaac Newton, Commissioner of Agriculture, of incapacity and mismanagement.

During the recent visit of Sheridan to Galveston he was so convinced of the disloyalty of the police that he removed every man from the Chief down.

The Tribune's special says the President has written to Breckinridge.

The President has appointed Wm Jackson, of Sacramento, Register of the Land Office.

Ohio Politics—Prize Fight.

CINCINNATI, June 1.—Considerable interest is being manifested in the choice of a Republican candidate for Governor of Ohio. Congressman Hays, of Cincinnati, apparently has the inside track.

Aaron Jones and Mike McCool have finally concluded articles of agreement for a prize fight for $1,000 a side, to take place August 31st, within 50 miles of Cincinnati.

A policeman was shot and killed by burglars at Detroit last evening.

Dispatch papers of May 16th say that not a single depredation has been committed by the Indians on the upper Missouri since the opening of navigation. Several parties came down in boats without molestation. Gen. Canby passed up lately with troops. His headquarters will be at Fort Sully. Two more forts will be established. There are now on the upper Missouri sufficient forts to keep the Indians in subjection.

NAVAL LICENSE LAW.—The Albany (N. Y.) Argus suggests the plan of leaving the sale of liquors free and licensing drinkers, as it is the drinking and not the selling that does the mischief. The license should provide that "no man should be entitled to drink unless he first get a license; and any barkeeper who should sell to an unlicensed party should be subject to fine and imprisonment." The license should be annual; and the sum charged should be from $20 to $100. No young man should be allowed a license till he was sixteen, and until twenty-one years of age, only a beer drinker at a moderate charge. After twenty-one he could vote, drink and chew tobacco upon payment of license; and the same privilege should be extended to strong minded women. Some men whose constitutions utterly unfit them for potations, should be refused a license altogether. They are "non insurable." Before taking out his license a citizen should have time to reflect, and as they would have to pay in advance for the glorious privilege, the reflection would be forced on most people. It is true that with those parchment privileges, we should have a titular nobility of drink; but lofty as this aristocracy might be at night, and in the "wee sma' hours of morning, the next day it will be abject enough.

THE EFFECTS OF TEA ON THE SKIN.—If you drop a few drops of strong tea upon a piece of iron—a knife blade for instance—the tannate of iron is formed, which is black. If you mix it with iron filings or pulverized iron, you can make a fair article of ink. If you mix it with fresh human blood, it forms, with the iron of the blood, the tannate of iron. Take human skin and let Washington Territory Election.

The returns received indicate the possibility of Flanders' election. Clark failed to get the large majority he expected in Walla Walla county. Returns from all but two precincts in that county show that he is only ninety votes ahead His majority will hardly be above one hundred, and may be considerably less. The town of Walla Walla threw over 600 votes in the election Wallula gave Flanders thirty-four and Clark nine. The returns indicate the election of the entire Union Legislative ticket in Walla Walla. This, if true, is a most excellent and encouraging result. On the figures now at hand, Clark has not more than fifty majority, while the best Union counties have not yet been heard from. There is much reason to hope for Flanders' election.

An Oregon Book.

Some time ago Hon. Isaac Cox, Representative in the State Legislature from Josephine county, notified the public that he was preparing for the press a work of a political character, the appearance of which might be expected soon. Mr. Cox has fulfilled his engagement and his book, The American Safeguard, is before the public. It is a book of nearly 400 pages, the greater part of which consists of such matter as Washington's Farewell Address, the Inaugural Addresses of Adams, Jefferson and Madison, the Farewell Address of Jackson, Extracts from the Federalist, and Jefferson's Manual of Parliamentary Practice. It contains, besides, the Declaration of Independence, and the Constitution of the United States, with an Analytical Index of the Constitution. Much valuable matter is here arranged in a convenient form, though most of it is easily accessible in the numerous "Political Manuals" which have been issued and multiplied during the past half century. The original portion of Mr. Cox's book is comprised in the space of about 130 pages, and consists of a short treatise upon the Government and History of the United States, and a treatise on Political Economy. The author is known to be a Democrat of the "most straitest sect;" but for some reason or other he does not view history from a Democratic standpoint. His investigations in this field have evidently led him in many instances to conclusions directly opposite to the ideas entertained by his party generally. We think therefore that Mr. Cox has done himself great service by studying history with a view to writing an impartial book, and cannot but wish that others of his party would engage in similar investigations. As the political antecedents of Mr. Cox are very generally known, we think the public will be as much surprised with portions of his book as we were on reading the following passages:

> By an inconsistency of circumstances most remarkable, a great free nation was born with slavery incorporated among its institutions. It was partially forced on the colonists by the avarice of a king who insisted that the slave trade should continue because he derived an income by levying a duty on the traffic. The circumstances of climate made the negro at home in Georgia and the Carolinas, while the need of labor and the difficulty of securing such as could withstand the climate made him seem invaluable. Against the prevailing sentiment of the Southern statesmen of the Revolution slavery had grown powerful, because natural causes made Southern prosperity seem to depend on it, while as the North a more temperate climate and immigration from the old world made the sluggish movements of a slave comparatively worthless. So the people of the Southern States were born with slavery as a heritage, and the institution that the world was beginning to abhor, was to them a domestic fact, sometimes aggravated by abuses, and often attended with humane and benevolent characteristics. As new territory was acquired, all were claimed by the right of being extended, and thus spread far beyond the original Illimits. * * Congress became the theatre of excited debate, and every State a political arena, where the question of slavery and its extension occupied almost exclusive place. Looking back upon the past we see that the effect has been to develop sectional animosity and political strife. The results of 1860 were in favor of the free soil sentiment. The election of President Lincoln and a Congress to sustain him showed that the extension of slavery had an end. During all these years political antagonism had been producing bitterness, and the leaders of the South drew their people after them, until secession was attempted, and rebellion and civil war became the inevitable consequences. Pages 144, 145, 146.

This is a remarkably candid and correct view of the great struggle between freedom and slavery. Mr. Cox is the only Democratic writer we have ever known who has treated the subject with so great a degree of fairness. The history he writes is of that sort which "Abolitionists" themselves will have no objection to seeing circulated. What his own party will say is quite another question. Those who resisted the extension of slavery and finally abolished it, desire no better justification than Mr. Cox has voluntarily given them. Take the following as further proof that historical investigation has done the author good:

> It is the fashion of political and sensational writers to applaud by favor and condemn with prejudice, but it becomes the historian only to recite facts and leave conclusions to be formed by intelligent minds. It is sad to have to recount the lamentable story of civil war: but the occasion is past, and the fact remains that the Union is preserved, and the nation has grown great since the greatest while it has been involved in civil war with its existence at stake. As a consequence of late events, slavery ceases to exist, and without slavery there is no great disturbing cause to rend the land with deadly differences. It delayed the accomplishment of the Federal Union; it has divided the nation by a geographical line for half a century; it has been seen at the ballot box and heard at the hustings, until its travels were more extensive than the original Union. But it exists no longer, and as soon as national harmony has secured a hold again upon every State, we may hope that a reconstructed Union will maintain the principles of the Constitution and flourish under it forever.

There is really a good deal of propriety in calling the book which contains such sentiments as these, the American Safeguard. Nothing could be more directly in opposition to all the recent teachings of the Democratic party than the general ideas embodied in the extracts we have given. We must congratulate Mr. Cox on the breadth of his views and the justness of his sentiments. He has completely vindicated the course of his political opponents, and exposed the errors of his own party. Probably this was not intentional; we think it is the direct result of his honest efforts to be impartial, and to lay aside every prejudice and all partisan feeling. His indirect, but conclusive testimony in favor of the party which has removed the "great disturbing cause" which "rent the land with deadly differences," is valuable as coming from one occupying the author's stand-point; and we are persuaded that if more history of this sort were written by men who can obtain readers among the Democratic party, Democrats would soon be vastly fewer than they are now.

That Mr. Cox has wandered away from the path of genuine Democratic orthodoxy is also rendered clear from the following paragraphs which we quote from his treatise on Political Economy:

> We can only allude to the subject of protection to give the results of experience, for by a system of tariff regulations, it has been demonstrated that customs on importations offer the easiest means of raising revenue, and that protection can be made incidental thereto
> Whenever manufactures have flourished and labor has been rewarded, the country has been prosperous and the amount of protection given has enabled every section of the land to erect manufactories, and call the labor, of many States to assist our industry. Pages 178, 178.

The Democratic papers which have commended Mr. Cox's book have evidently done so without looking into it, for nothing could be more foreign to the creed of that party than the above arguments in favor of a protective tariff. At almost every step the author rejects some cherished Democratic principle or notion, and though we should probably find on close examination that we could not endorse nearly all that is contained in the original portion of his book, we have no hesitancy in commending it to general attention, or even suggesting that it be given a place in schools with a special view to which it is furnished with questions and otherwise conveniently arranged. We believe the book will do good, and are glad to be assured that its publication is a successful experiment on the part of its author.

When Mr. Peabody was in Wilmington he made a gift of $15,000 to the city of Georgetown, where he used to live, for a circulating library.

STATE ITEMS.

A Methodist camp meeting was held last week in Jackson county.

The Good Templars in the neighborhood of Lebanon, Linn county, had a pic-nic in a delightful grove near that town, on Saturday last

On Monday, at Albany, a "good Indian" beat his squaw until he broke her arm, and dangerously demoralized a buck with a big knife. Good indian got on his horse and went away Cause, all drunk.

It is expected that the frame of the Albany college will be raised next week The foundation is complete, the sills in place and the timbers nearly all prepared It will be 50x60 feet, two stories and a very substantial edifice

On Wednesday about 300 of the attachees of the Salem Sabbath schools visited Albany, accompanied by a brass band, and were received by about an equal number of the school members and others, marched to the Court House and had a pleasant time returning home at four o'clock P M Arrangements had been made in anticipation of a pleasant day, to entertain the visitors in a grove one mile from the landing, but the rain prevented out-door enjoyment. It was a happy meeting, and all seemed pleased

A couple of freedmen went from Albany to Corvallis on Sabbath last, and while at the latter place indulged quite freely. Returning, the horse ran away and was badly injured, the buggy smashed and the occupants spilled, one having his ear so badly cut as to require a doctor to sew it on again, the other receiving three large splinters in his neck, which for a time threatened to permanently estop the further inhibition of tarantula juice. After lying insensible for the best part of two days, he came to, and is now in a fair way of recovery

The Jacksonville Press says The news from Wines Camp on Jump-Off-Jo is, in every respect, gratifying All the companies, thus far, who have cleaned up have made good remunerative wages; notwithstanding the extra labor and embarrassments encountered in opening the claims. Mr. Wines and partner, after a run of one day and a half, cleaned up $80, and it is said their claim averages $12 a day to the hand, regularly. Many of the other claims when pieced in as good condition for working will, no doubt, pay fully as well. Every person with whom we have conversed, who has visited the new mines and is capable of judging intelligently as to their value, expresses the unqualified opinion that the new camp is bound to prove one of the best in Southern Oregon.

Sympathizers with the Old South.

Speaking of the extracts which we have frequently made from Southern papers for the purpose of showing the present animus of the South toward the Democratic party, the Herald says

> The OREGONIAN from time to time gives such extracts to show that the Democracy has no reliable strength in the South, while the manner of Southern sympathies of the party forms the basis of its denunciations.

There is not the slightest inconsistency in our our action in this regard. The extracts we have quoted show that the South is repudiating the Democratic party; but the instincts of the Northern Democrats in regard to the South are still as truckling, as abject, and as servile as ever. The South is abandoning the Democracy, but the Democracy, like a creeping sycophant, refuse to be kicked or cuffed out of the service, or supposed service, of their old political masters. The South is forsaking its old errors, but the Democratic party still cherishes them. The Northern Democracy, generally, still stand where the South stood in 1860-'61. They adhere to the very same ideas that the South held at the beginning of the rebellion. The South is getting beyond this, and is gradually growing into other and better principles. It is the old, not the new South, that the Democratic party sympathize with, and it is for this sympathy that that party is denounced. The Herald and its party have not the smallest sympathy with the progressive ideas now growing and advancing in the South. It is the old Southern gods of State sovereignty, secession and slavery that the Democracy still worship. The Southern people entertain a very natural indignation toward that party because it promised to help them in the rebellion and failed to do so. Moreover they have judgment enough to know that the Democracy can never succeed so long as they adhere to the very same principles which the South made an unsuccessful fight to maintain. Hence they are out of patience with that party, and speak bitterly against it. But it still doggedly adheres to the principles of the "Lost Cause," and refuses to advance one step beyond them. We denounce the Democratic party, not because it has any sympathy with the new progressive movement at the South, for it has none; but because it still advocates the principles of the great Southern rebellion.

A Big Blunder.—An Eastern telegram dated Washington, April 27th, says;

> The internal revenue collectorship of the first Arkansas district is in a curious condition. It appears that some weeks ago the report reached the Treasury Department that McGuire, the Collector, had suddenly disappeared. An examination of his accounts showed that he was largely indebted to the Government, and the Department at once began to make inquiries to ascertain his whereabouts. Not readily finding him it was assumed that he had absconded with funds in his possession, and officers were put on his track with orders to arrest him wherever found. They learned at Memphis that he had gone to New Orleans, and thither they followed. In the meantime, the executive session of the Senate was drawing to a close, and the department telegraphed to parties in Helena asking for recommendation for a new collector. These were made, and another collector was nominated and confirmed. About the time this was done, the officers arrested McGuire in New Orleans. An examination was made, and it turned out that he was neither a rascal nor a runaway. It seems that he had taken a considerable amount of New Orleans drafts in payment for taxes, which he was not able to turn into currency in Arkansas. Arriving in Memphis, he could not dispose of them to as good advantage as he hoped, and having some private business in New Orleans, he concluded to go there and take along his government funds. This he did, and the day before he was arrested he had deposited several thousand dollars to the credit of the Government with the sub-treasury of that city. After the facts were shown, he came on to Washington and found that he was not only looked upon as a defaulter, but had been turned out of office. The department is much mortified at its blunder, has made apologies, and is now trying to find a way for reinstating McGuire.

A Wreck.—George Alfred Townsend writes to the Cincinnati Gazette, in a letter descriptive of a sea voyage, the following item of interesting personal intelligence:

> But the central figure of the ship is an old paralytic man, in whose lost and struggling intelligence you see reminiscences of long command. It is Commander Hartstein, who was an officer of the United States Navy thirty-three years. When the war began, his instincts, though a South Carolinian, were all for the Government. But his wealthy wife influenced him first to passiveness, then to rebellion. He gave up his commission, which was his history, and like a lost energy wandered to and fro in Charleston, full of dark premonitions of the success of the great Government he had betrayed. When the fire was opened upon Sumpter, he strolled in the same abstract way to Fort Moultrie, and looked at the gunners driving iron into the faithful old castle. There was no enthusiasm in his regard. Next morning, when the flag of Fort Sumter fell, a stroke of paralysis fell upon Commander Hartstein God spared him the work of a traitor, if not his defection. They carried his wrecked body to a blockade runner, and he lay stunned and remorseless in Paris three years, filled with bitter upbraidings against his counselors. They fed him with a spoon like a baby. He has returned home to find his broad lands laid waste; his wife's homestead is untenable. Lonely and wearily those two with their daughter are returning to Europe to spend the rest of their life in almost indigent exile.

A Fowl Manufactory.—Ducklings and chickens are now hatched at the Warm Springs, State of Nevada, by the warmth of the water. The Carson Appeal describes the process

> Some old cans, provided with bits of woolen rags to prevent the cool air getting into the top, and sunk a little distance into the tepid water, the eggs get turned regularly, and so the work goes on. Eight or ten chickens and as many ducks have been forced into existence in this way. We suppose that the doors which lead into the baths will henceforth be termed hatchways

The immured editor of the Savannah Republican continues to write leaders dated "Chatham Jail"

VAST CONTRAST.—What a great difference there must be between the climate of Russian America and the climate we live in; while the former is bitterly cold, the latter is extremely warm, and while other houses in this city sell goods at extreme high prices, KOHN & FISHEL, No. 91 Front street, have come down to the other extreme by selling Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods, etc, at very low prices, of which every person is already convinced, and those who ain't, can be convinced by calling on them and be convinced.

TRIAL OF A FIRE ENGINE.—Some of our firemen may be interested in the results of a trial, recently made at Hayes, of a fire engine—worked by one man and then by two men. The work done seems to us to have been liable. We publish the account of the trials as sent us by a correspondent, partly because interesting and partly because the letter is practically a challenge to our fire companies:

Columbia Engine Company of this place, has been making some experiments of late, in regard to the capacity of their engine, while working with a small number of men. I send you the results of a trial last evening.

The engine, worked by one man only, drafted water from a cistern through sixteen feet of suction, and threw through fifty-eight feet of hose, using three-quarter inch nozzle, eighty feet and six inches horizontally, and water, from the end of the pipe. 2d Trial—Drafted water from cistern, working through fifty-four feet of hose, with three-quarter inch nozzle by two men, two throws, a distance of one hundred and eight feet and one hundred and thirteen feet, six inches. 3d trial Drafted and played as before, with four men, one hundred and twenty-one feet. The engine used was a No. 5 Hunter, with cylinders 9½x7½ inches. Worked on a Waters "fire dress," without extension brakes. The measurement of the stream was of solid water only, without spray or spatter, under the supervision of impartial judges. Much interest was manifested in the trials. Some of the firemen think that the plays were remarkable, and would be pleased to see the result of a fair trial of some of your engines.

MUSICAL.—GROB'S CONCERT.—We had the pleasure of listening to a portion of the vocal and instrumental concert last evening at Oro Fino Hall, given by Prof. Grob and his pupils. The hall contained an audience of not less than four hundred, and we doubt if a single person present failed to enjoy the entertainment highly. The children of the class certainly exhibited a proficiency which is to the highest credit upon their tutor under whose care they began their musical education. We were most pleased with Misseres, arranged for piano, organ and violin, and performed by Miss Jennie Rosenbaum, organ, Master James Troup, violin, and Prof. Grob, piano. Its execution was artistic and the effect grand. The March from Norma, arranged for two pianos, and organ, (and, we may add, an anvil,) was a beautiful piece, rather artistically comic in the anvil accompaniment, and was performed with very pretty skill. Miss Grob and Mr. Levins were enthusiastically encored in "Holy Mother," a duet, and Miss Rosenbaum received a magnificent bouquet for the "Carnival of Venice," a piano solo. Of the other performances, we cannot speak, because we did not hear them. Prof. Grob has reason to be proud of the very flattering manner in which this, his first juvenile concert, was received. If he had needed any recommendation as a teacher of music, the accomplishments of his pupils as exhibited on this occasion, would have amply supplied it.

COUNTY COURT.—Thursday, June 6th: C. S. Mills vs. Henry J. Heath; action on promissory notes; judgment against defendant for $59 40, coin, and $37 05 legal tenders.

Petition for closing up and vacating county road across the lands of J. B. Stephens in East Portland and report of viewers, were read first time.

The petition of N. Williams to sell liquors in less quantities than one quart at the White House, was allowed. The petition of S. S. Woodward to sell liquors in less quantities than one quart at the Fulton House, was granted.

PASSENGERS FOR SAN FRANCISCO.—The following passengers sailed per steamship Oriflamme, for San Francisco last evening: Maj. Gen. F. Steele, O Joynt, D L Walter, Rt Rev Thos F Scott and wife, F Nodine, E Hayes, Mrs Ernstein and infant, M Hickey and wife, W Kelly, H Leshnik, J Spositz, H Austin, Mrs Santer, Mrs F Rosman, D J Berry, W F Welch, M D, H Shahan, Mr Richardson, J O Mayer, J Arey, O Taylor, D Wright, Jno Kidd, Jno Kelly, Mrs T B Kelly and child, R B Acker, H G Stuart, N A Hawley, wife and child, A Hoffman, W G West (W, F & Co's messenger,) and 29 in steerage.

THAT "SCREW LOOSE" AGAIN.—In the wholesale houses of Corbitt & Marlsey, we saw yesterday, a lot of California beans, marked for Corvallis, and Mr. Marlsey informed us that his firm had shipped thousands of pounds of these to Salem, Albany, Corvallis and other towns of the Willamette valley. They order them and sell them just about as regularly as they do coffee. The fact that the valley is buying thousands of pounds of beans from California when it might easily raise and sell thousands of bushels of a better quality, is sufficient to excite a notice, at least, that a very large sized screw is loose and needs tightening.

COUNTERFEITERS ARRESTED.—Four persons were arrested yesterday afternoon, in this city, on the charge of being engaged in counterfeiting gold and silver coin. The police have been looking for the gang for some time, and it is thought there are several more who are interested in their unlawful transactions. One of these same parties had an examination yesterday before Justice Graden and was discharged. The Prosecuting Attorney advises the Court of vagrant at present, as it is not certain, yet, whether the evidence to be elicited, will be sufficient to hold all the parties.

HIGH WATER.—The river has been rising very rapidly for the last day or two, and is now within three feet of the high water mark of last year. The indications look very much toward an uncomfortable stage of water within a short time.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT—DEADY, JUSTICE.—The following are the proceedings in this court, on Thursday, the 6th inst:

James Field vs J. P. O. Lownsdale et al; motion for defendants to show cause why they should not be required to file copies of process against them at this term of court, argued and submitted. Chapman for complaint; Page for defendants.

Order that a venire issue for fifteen petit jurors to appear on Saturday morning next.

RECORDER'S COURT.—In the Recorder's Court, yesterday, James Butler, on the charge of gambling, was held in the sum of $300, to answer in the Circuit court.

The case of Wormser, depositing a nuisance in the back yard, still hold under advisement.

A John Ruger, assault and battery upon Wm. Cook, compromised by consent of complaining witness, defendant paying costs.

FREIGHT FOR SAN FRANCISCO.—The Oriflamme sailed for San Francisco last evening with the following freight list: 15,322 qr sks flour, 1 570 sks wheat, 100 bales paper, 90 cases bacon, 69 bales wool, 30 hf bbls dried apples, 40 boxes eggs, 15 hides, 9 cases billiard tables, 19 pkgs furniture, 7 pkgs liquors, 5 boxes butter, 2 planos, 2 crops chickens, 25 cases lard, 3 bales skins, 5 horses, 5 cases mdse, 4 bales mdse, 10 pkgs mdse.

SPECIAL MEETING OF THE PIONEERS.—At a special meeting of the Pioneer B. B. Club last evening, S. B. Parrish was elected Captain of the Second Nine. A resolution was adopted to challenge the Clackamas B. B. Club to play a match game in this city on Monday, the 17th. This game will excite an unusual degree of interest, as the Clackamas Club is acknowledged to be rather formidable.

WILLAMETTE FREIGHTS.—The Senator, yesterday, brought down from Oregon City, the following freight: 10 boxes apples, 2,200 qr sks flour, 3 kits, 28 boxes produce, 24 hf bbls dried apples, 7 bales woolen goods, 5 tins matches, 9 cases mdse, 175 gunnies bacon, 5 dressed hogs, 1 bale skins, 201 bags wheat, 3 kegs butter and a lot of lumber.

AN ERROR.—In our report of the council proceedings, yesterday morning the types made the Mayor say, in his letter to Col. Williamson, "Excavations yet to be made at Swan Island bar to secure 14 feet of water, 46,020 42 cubic yards." Instead of "14," it should have read 18.

TREASURE RECEIPT.—Wells, Fargo & Co. received yesterday by the Dalles boat, $10,000 in treasure, from the Upper Columbia.

LOST.—A Diary for 1867, containing two letters addressed to Frank B. Mason. The finder will confer a favor by leaving it at this office.

THE CONCERT.—Prof Grob's, Concert, last evening, was one of the most complete successes of the season. The "Anvil Polka" forcibly reminded us of a similar polka one day as we were passing Barman Bro's, corner Front and Morrison streets, where we purchased a new Spring suit. Try them.

COLUMBIA FISH MARKET, foot of Stark street, opposite Arrigoni's, receive daily large supplies of fresh salmon, which are offered at the lowest rates. Please call and examine.

CURE FOR COUGH OR COLD.—As soon as there is the slightest uneasiness of the Chest, with difficulty of breathing, or indications of Cough, take during the day a few of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." Containing demulcent ingredients, they allay Pulmonary Irritation. Have them in readiness upon the first appearance of a Cough or Cold.

Consumption like the Rattle Snake, always gives warning of its approach. A hacking cough, dull pain in the chest, difficulty of breathing, are the indications that there is more or less irritation of the lungs. If this be neglected, and go on until pustules are formed, followed by tubercles, which sometimes eat off the blood vessels, death will be the result. Sherp's Lung Balsam will heal the irritated parts, allay the inflammation, removing the phlegm and matter, thus stopping the cough, and preventing fatal consumption. PERRY DAVIS' VEGETABLE PAIN KILLER, after a thorough trial, by innumerable living witnesses, has proved itself THE MEDICINE OF THE AGE. Although there have been many medicinal preparations brought before the public since the first introduction of Perry Davis' Vegetable Pain Killer, and large amounts expended in their introduction, the Pain Killer has continued to steadily advance in the estimation of the world as the best Family Medicine ever introduced. It is an internal and external remedy. One positive proof of its efficacy is, that the sales have constantly increased, and wholly upon its own merits. The effect of the Pain Killer upon the patient, when taken internally in case of Cold, Cough, Bowel Complaints, Cholera, Dysentery, and other affections of the system, has been truly wonderful, and has won for it a name among medical preparations that can never be forgotten. Its success in removing pain, as an external remedy in case of Burns, Bruises, Bores, Sprains, Cuts, Sting of Insects, and other causes of suffering, has secured for it such a host of testimony, as an almost infallible remedy, that it will be handed down to posterity as one of the greatest medical discoveries of the nineteenth century.

A Strange Divorce.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION FROM MR. O. W. WIGHT.

To the Editor of the Chicago Tribune

Your paper of the 13th inst contains an attack on me, copied from an Indiana journal. I have a right to ask space for a reply

It is painful to be compelled to draw aside the curtain from one's private and domestic life Friends who have known me long and well, gentlemen and gentlewomen who have met me often in society, those who have traveled with me the mystic journey in the East, the charitable and thoughtful, to whose minds a groundless attack carries in its spirit and contradictions its own refutation, will require of me no vindication of my character, but to them, as well as to the public, I owe an explanation.

Near the end of May, in the year 1851, I was married. I returned from Europe after a lengthy absence, but a few days before my marriage. The death of the young lady's mother (all the rest of her family were dead before my acquaintance began) hastened my return. I had been engaged to her several years. The marriage had been put off from time to time on account of her health. She was twenty-three years of age. I knew that she was afflicted with some nervous disease, which was represented to me by her mother as hysteria. Almost immediately after our marriage we embarked for Europe. The steamer duly landed at Liverpool, and we went directly to the famous "Lake District" of England. About a month after our marriage, she was, one day, at Keswick, stricken down at my feet with a fit of epilepsy. Attack followed attack, until she had seventeen in the course of the night. I stood alone by her bedside, amazed, bewildered, bedrushed, turning gray ere the sun rose. Her fearful disease (so fearful, as Dr. Watson says, that "the beasts of the field flee in terror at the characteristic cry of one seized with it") had been concealed from me. Yet, I am publicly accused of having put away one who was in "good health at the time of her marriage," simply because she had become an invalid on my hands. If her parents had been living I should have taken her home to them, and never should have seen her again in this world. But she was an orphan and alone. She had not been to blame. That terrible night, on bended knees before God Almighty, I adopted her as my child. Never has a word of reproach to her on account of the concealment, escaped my lips. From that hour to this I have been an affectionate parent to her ("father and mother in one," as she has a thousand times, with gushing tears, expressed it,) and during many of the lonely intervening years I have been sole nurse to her, patiently, uncomplainingly, tenderly performing for her offices that no money could procure.

I wandered over Europe nearly four years, taking my patient and ward to many eminent physicians, hoping against hope that perchance her disease might be cured. It had existed from infancy. Every physician—and to you, my brethren of the regular profession, I appeal as witnesses of the truth of the assertion in regard to the disease—knows how incurable a long standing case of epilepsy is—how it unfits for the pursuits and active duties of life. Besides, as every educated physiologist understands, it is very likely to be transmitted to offspring. With a knowledge of this fact, none but a brute and godless wretch would incur the responsibility of being the author of children who might inherit this fearful malady.

I returned from Europe and undertook to establish me a home, foolishly endeavoring to conceal the real nature of her disease from my friends, as multitudes will now bear me witness. It was an unmanly pride and a weak yielding to her entreaties, which, like all untruth, has brought its appropriate reward to both. More than twenty women, old and young, were tried as hired nurses, companions or house-keepers. None of them would do. Some of them would flee from the room when my patient had an attack. Some would hold up their hands in hopeless bewilderment. Others would sit down and cry with that natural sympathy for suffering which wells up from the depth of woman's heart, and for which God be praised.

Besides, as any educated physician will say, the nervous system of a confirmed epileptic is greatly deranged, causing one day dreamy indifference, another day perversity of will, another day tearful despondency, still another day a state verging into insanity, with longer or shorter intervals of naturalness, when company may be sent or a journey taken. There are people living, who ignorant of her disease, ignorant of Christian charity, having gratuitously attributed these moods to my ill-treatment of her. So, what with her new nurses, refractory servants, and a poor, incapable epileptic (for whom my heart was breaking with sympathy) to get things out of joint, I had a serious time of it housekeeping.

At length, from a respectable family that had known me from my youth, came, half a dozen years ago, a good lady, educated, intelligent, refined, to spend the summer with us. She at once showed herself capable of taking care of my incurable epileptic patient in an efficient and friendly manner. She won the confidence and sympathy of my poor child, and won my everlasting gratitude. The chaos of the house was reduced to order. The summer visit was indefinitely prolonged. I plunged into affairs, translating or editing the next two years more than a dozen volumes of "French classics," writing a multitude of review articles, projecting and publishing, through different book houses, the famous "Riverside" editions of Bacon's Works, the novels of Dickens, Hilman's Latin Christianity, Carlyle's Essays, Macaulay's Miscellanies, Montaigne's Essays, &c., (paying but little attention to domestic matters,) till four out of five publishing firms with which I was doing business went to the wall in the midst of the war.

An efficient friend could not always remain with us. My nominal wife, my epileptic ward, could not bear to part with her "Aunt Kate," as she familiarly and affectionately called her. A recurrence to the old method of housekeeping was an impossibility. Boarding was attended with the same difficulties. Two persons were necessary for the care of an epileptic who could never be left safely alone, except for some hours on particular days. My friends, coming to know the situation, advised an asylum. My heart revolted against that, as it still revolts against it, although I have had, for a long time, an arrangement with a noble friend of mine, the honored head of a New England asylum, to take her, in case of my death or some imperative necessity.

A new plan was proposed by my patient herself, at first in jest then in earnest. The nominal tie between us should be severed, and then she might have two instead of one to take care of her. It will be said that no wife should make such a proposition. Verily no wife could. Let it be remembered that she was wife only in name; in really, adopted child. She had come to regard it as religiously wrong to think of fulfilling the relations of wife in her condition. She ardently desired to be released from the responsibilities of a station she could not fill. When asked by me (with the ulterior object of divorce in view) to assume the place required of her by the external bond of our union, she revolted, declaring she should never live with me again, and remained extremely unhappy till she discovered my true meaning. A simple attestation of this attitude on her part satisfied the letter of the law. There was no witness against her, except in the technical sense of the Courts. The testimony, as seen from the point of our real life, was for her, and as she wished it. The truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, was told by the only one that had the secret of our hearts. That truth satisfied the law's letter, while its just and pure spirit was satisfied by the purity and justice of our aims.

In order, however, to satisfy some scruples of conscience, we made a first attempt to procure a divorce on the naked merits of the case, under that clause in the Indiana law giving to the Judge power to release from the bond of matrimony, when in his opinion it is best for all parties concerned. The cause of our failure is not a matter of public interest. We succeeded elsewhere. Two months after the divorce was procured I married again. The divorced wife stood by our side with her attorney during the ceremony, not to act as bridesmaid, as the attack has it, but to signify her approbation in the strongest manner. The marriage was private in our rooms. As the clergyman pronounced the last words of the service, she said in a clear, firm tone, "It is all just as I want it." The marriage was solemnized in the presence of a dozen Christian men and women, representatives of some of the best families in the city, who would not have sanctioned a "queer," much less an iniquitous, thing. The clergyman, pastor of one of the leading churches in the place, who performed the ceremony, had lived in rooms adjoining ours all winter, and knew us well He would not have married parties compelling (as it is intimated) "this divorced wife to stand beside the woman that was to usurp her place." "The curse and blight of the Almighty" is called down, "to avenge the wrongs of the wretched woman." The wretched woman has not been so happy (till our peaceful domestic circle was invaded by this attack) in a dozen years, as she has been since that hour, when she "stood there like a living corpse."

At the close of the ceremony, myself and wife adopted the former wife in the most solemn religious manner, promising to keep her with us, to care for, cherish and support her "as long as she is spared to us," "as we hope for mercy at the judgment seat." That adoption is in the form of a document, signed by us, witnessed by those present at the ceremony, and left in the hands of a distinguished clergyman, open at all times to all right minded persons for inspection. Before our marriage we signed legal bonds, binding ourselves to heavy penalties to the same effect These bonds are in the hands of her attorney, where they will remain, and may be seen by properly-intentioned people.

It has been publicly reported that I have squandered for her a large fortune It is false. She had an income when she was married, thirteen years ago, of $1,000 She now has enough, from property and bonds in her own right and name, to secure her against all contingencies.

As to the foul allusion to the physical uses of marriage, I pass over them in sorrow, not in anger We here "see through a glass darkly" The medium through which each one beholds things, is colored by the hues of his own soul The life of the world, as it appears to the vision of each of us, necessarily takes this tint of the observer's spirit. I thank God that I and mine can see, all around us, pure Christian men and women, whose bodies are fit temples for the indwelling of the Holy Ghost.

All these details are painful to me to the extreme, but the whole circulation given by respectable journals to the attack, leaves me the alternative. In Christian charity I have been willing to believe that sympathy for an afflicted, helpless woman, that indignation for her supposed wrongs, were the motives of the writer of that article. Whoever you are that wrote it, I assure you in the blessed spirit of forgiveness that your sympathy seems to its unfortunate object but an impertinent mockery. In her disease, perhaps the heaviest physical calamity of mortal life has been laid upon her; she is surrounded with tried affection in those who have cheerfully suffered and will continue cheerfully to suffer for her sake, and she begs, for the dear Redeemer's sake, to be spared the meddlesomeness of those who are strangers and necessarily must be strangers, to our inner life.

Thus, with the Maker of Heaven and earth looking into my heart, have I written the simple truth in regard to this matter. If the world with exact knowledge of the facts, blames me, I shall bear it meekly, hopefully Allow me here, Mr. Editor, to request those journals that have copied the attack to copy also this reply. O. W WIGHT.

How a Seduced Woman Avenged her Wrong.

A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune writing from Blandville, Ballard county, (Ky.) April 23d, relates the following:

The usual quiet of this little village has been disturbed by an incident of great moment to us, and one which forcibly illustrates the old saws that "murder will out" and a "woman cannot keep a secret." About eleven years ago there came to this county, and settled about five miles from this town, a man named Hudson, of South Carolina, in which State he abandoned his wife and three children. One of his neighbors, named Belcher, was the father of two buxom daughters, between the younger of whom, aged fifteen, and Hudson there sprang up an intimacy which resulted in the seduction of the girl. Nine years ago this month, Hudson committed suicide, and was found in the garret of his house hanging by the neck, his knees touching the floor. He must have committed the dead four or five days before his body was discovered, as the remains had commenced to decay, and one side of his face and ear, were much eaten by rats. A coroner's inquest was held over the body, and a verdict of suicide returned. One of the jurors, however, noticed something like a piece of iron in the ear of the deceased, but did not examine it very minutely, nor did he mention the fact for some time after.

The younger Belcher girl married a man named McNabb, with whom she has since lived very happily, notwithstanding she became a mother in a few months after marriage. The family prospered. The elder sister likewise married and was much respected, none of the neighbors having aught to say against either of the girls. But there was a skeleton in both households; and the sisters, as they plodded along the journey of life, were continually harassed by tears and doubts, each striving in vain to lay the frightful visions which haunted their minds.

A few weeks since, during a fit of despondency, the younger sister divulged to a neighbor the terrible secret which had so long weighed upon her conscience and made her life a torment. It was that herself, with her sister and husband, had murdered Hudson! Her story was, that in company with McNabb, whom she afterward married, and her eldest sister, called upon Hudson, and telling her situation, upbraided him for her betrayal. Hudson attempted to laugh away the affair, and, for the first time, informed her of his being a married man. This incensed both the sisters and McNabb, all of whom commenced an assault upon Hudson, as had been previously agreed upon in case he refused to do justice to the girl he had so foully wronged. Hudson was easily overpowered, and killed by driving into his ear a portion of an iron spindle belonging to a spinning-wheel. After the murder was accomplished the body was taken to the loft of the cabin and left hanging by the neck, as it was found, as before stated, several days thereafter.

The woman to whom this fearful secret was imparted divulged the facts before the Grand Jury at the present term of the Circuit Court, who at once found a bill against McNabb, his wife and sister-in-law; and on yesterday the parties were arrested, brought to this town and securely placed in jail.

The women are both decidedly good-looking, but their countenances seem to indicate that they have no hope.

This is one of the most singular cases that has ever come before any Court in Kentucky, and shows that "truth is stranger than fiction."

DEATH OF A PERSON SUPPOSED TO BE THE DAUPHIN OF FRANCE.—A mysterious personage died a short time back at St. Petersburg, and news has just come to hand of his funeral, which took place on the 8th of March. This personage was a Russian Major, in his eighty-fifth year, named Count Louis Carlowitch de Ligny Luxemberg. In the latter part of the last century the deceased came to Russia with his reputed father, Count Charles de Ligny Luxemburg, a former French Colonel in the reign of Louis XVI., and the last representative of the younger branch of the once famous ducal house of the Ligny Luxembergs. Count Louis, who has just quitted this life almost unknown and unnoticed, was currently reported to be no other than the unfortunate Dauphin of France, the child of Louis XVI. and Maria Antoinette, and who mysteriously disappeared on the decapitation of his royal parents. At all events it is perfectly certain that on the entry of the allies into Paris 1814, Count Ligny de Luxemberg was presented to the Empress Josephine, who promised him that his future should be surely assured, and requested him to come to her on the following day. In this intervening night Josephine died. Now this incident is narrated in the Memories d'un Pair de France, and it is therein clearly stated that the visitor to the Empress Josephine was the Dauphin. Moreover there are still persons living who enjoy the confidence of Count Louis' reputed father, Count Charles de Ligny Luxemberg, to whom I have referred above, all these persons affirm that Count Charles had admitted to them that, during the reign of terror, he was one day requested to attend the house of Josephine, who was at that time Josephine Beauharnais. He there met Madame Taillen and the two ladies begged him to take under his protection an infant, respecting whose birth they would, at some future time, give him full explanations They furnished the Count with ample funds and a passport, and helped him to leave France. On the frontier, however, he was arrested on account of the resemblance between the child he bore with him an the missing Dauphin. The fugitives were detained upward of a year in imprisonment, and Josephine and Madame Taillen obtained their release from Coehun, the Minister of the Interior. A strange circumstance of the case is that the child who was afterward called Count Louis, was admitted by the Russian Government into the army, was soon raised to the rank of Major, and had his title of Count confirmed without ever producing a register of his baptism, quite a violation of the Russian laws. Count Louis had a portrait of Marie Antoinette always hanging over the head of his bed.

BIOGRAPHICAL.—The Bulletin, is referring to Queen Victoria's birthday, diverges into the following bit of biography:

Half a century ago the third son of George III., on bad terms with his father and disliked by his brother, an exile from his country, miserably poor and over head and ears in debt, married to the widow of a petty German prince, and with little other means of support than her small juncture, suddenly found himself and his unborn child of some importance in the world by the sudden death of the Prince of Wales' only child. Early in 1819 he returned to England and took up his abode in Kensington Palace Forty eight years ago to day a daughter was born to him, who, shortly after her birth, became heir presumptive to the English Crown. Beginning life quietly, coming to the throne early, marrying the husband of her choice and blessed with a large and affectionate family, until the beginning of 1861 her life was one of the most even, pleasant and happy ever led by a powerful monarch Now, though her children all live the death in quick succession of her mother, husband and the uncle who had been all but a father to her, the King of the Belgians, her mind has partially sunk under her sorrows, and some of her own subjects forgetting what she has been, grumble that a heart-broken woman cannot fill the place of leader of fashion and court ceremonial as she was wont to do in her younger days In history Victoria will be remembered, not for the weakness of her late years, but because for five and twenty years she so ruled England as to win from jurists and others the reputation of being the best and most constitutional sovereign that had sat on the throne of England since the days of Alfred the Great.

THE WOODPECKER'S FORESIGHT.—The woodpecker of California is the storer of acorns. The tree he selects is invariably of the pine tribe He bores several holes, differing slightly in size, at the fall of the year, and then flies away, in many instances to a long distance, and returns with an acorn, which he immediately sets about adjusting to one of the holes prepared for its reception. But he does not eat the acorn for as a rule he is not a vegetarian. His object in storing away the acorn exhibits acute foresight, and knowledge of results more akin to reason than to instinct. The succeeding winter the acorn remains intact, but becoming saturated with rain, is predisposed to decay, when it is attacked by maggots, which seem to delight in this special food, it is then the woodpecker reaps the harvest his wisdom has provided, at a time when the ground being covered with snow, he would experience some difficulty in obtaining palatable food. It is a subject of speculation why the red wood cedar or the sugar pine is invariably selected, it is not probable that the insect, the most dainty to the woodpecker's taste, frequents only the outside of wet trees, but so it is that in Calaveras, Mariposa, and other districts of California, trees of this kind may be frequently seen covered all over their trunks with acorns, when there is not an oak tree within several miles. —*A.
